

ALL FOR WAR, SAYS PREMIER OF ONTARIO

William H. Hearst Tells Canadian Club Members of Country's Plans.

SEES GERMAN "KULTUR" AS WORLD MENACE

William H. Hearst, the new Premier of Ontario, led no doubt in the minds of the Canadian Club members before whom he spoke last evening at the Hotel Savoy that Canada is in the European war to stay if need be until her last man is gone and her last dollar spent.

Not was there apparently any doubt in the minds of the auditors, Americans in addition, as to the meaning of Mr. Hearst's somewhat veiled words when he said:

"I trust that I have said nothing that has struck a discordant note. I have told you that I am speaking as a Canadian to Canadians. We thank you for your neutrality, but I think that if the day should come when we need more help in the struggle for liberty we shall get it. I only ask you now to remember what England is doing for the cause of justice in the world. And I say, although I do not know, that perhaps at a future date something may happen to your ship."

"Kultur" and Militarism.

There was no mining of words by Mr. Hearst, with perhaps the above exception, which by the way did not provoke any applause. He said that, in his own view, the present war is one for liberty and freedom. He referred to German "Kultur" and militarism as a menace. He appealed for sympathy in behalf of Belgium, and said, but not in so many words, that it was to protect Belgium that Great Britain went to war. The subject of his address was "Canada and the War."

"We are a people determined on peace," he said, launching into the path of his remarks, "but, nevertheless, in time of strife we will stop at nothing to maintain our national honor and to uphold the integrity of the British Empire."

There was a day when men in Canada spoke of annexation to the United States, but that day has gone, and today we look only toward the advancement of the cause of liberty and justice, which flag encircles the globe. And not only are we ready to advance those aims and ambitions in times of peace, but in times of war, such as the present, we are ready to fight with all our might for them.

"To-day the fate of Great Britain is in the balance. More, to-day the liberty of mankind is in the balance. There is nothing left but to fight, and Canada is with the motherland as long as there is one man left to hold a rifle or one dollar left with which to buy ammunition."

This war, said Mr. Hearst, is a war of principle. The ideals of the German, their militarism, is inconsistent with the ideals of the British nation. I don't say anything against the ideal of the German, mark you; simply that they are so different from ours that the clash could not be avoided.

"World Power, or Downfall." It is their idea that they have been given a divine order to spread their culture over the world. As you know, their motto has been "World power, or downfall." War by them has been idealized, while by us it has been held a thing to be avoided.

"I think that the Germans chose this time to fight it out because they believed it the most opportune. They thought that Russia, a nation which has been threatening them, was unprepared, or at least would never be more unprepared. They knew that the German nation could never be in a better position than it is now. France was just in the midst of a great constitutional crisis. Belgium was expected to rest supreme. Nothing was anticipated from England. And besides, did the British Government at that time have its hands full with trouble in Ireland and rumblings in India? Furthermore, Germany believed that the overseas dominions would be left to their own devices and would not come to the aid of the British Government in the event of such a war."

But Russia surprised the world with her rapid mobilization. France flew to arms like a well-trained machine. And the overseas dominions? From every quarter of the globe men rushed to the British colors, and to-day are marching with heads erect into the line of battle. "And what of little Belgium? To-day she is the pride of the world. Not since the heroic stand at Thermopylae has there been an equal example of bravery and heroism."

"I ask you to-night as British born men could England do anything but insist on the rescue of this small but valiant nation? We will stand by her. Great Britain will stand by her. And the answer went back, 'Yes, for a scrap of paper we will fight to our last breath and may God defend the right.'"

"Had we stood aside, England would have been the shame of civilization and honor. I would sooner have seen the name of Great Britain blotted from the pages of history than to have had her name and honor sold at such a moment."

"This is a terrible war, but to my mind it would have been yet more terrible for England not to have taken up the defense of liberty. We will win. We must win, for if we fail the light will go out all over Europe. And when peace comes it must be permanent. It must be until men finally say that war shall be no more."

"I was never surer of Canadians than I am to-day. For years we have boasted of how we would go to the aid of the oppressed, and when it came to the aid of the oppressed we went out as from one throat and swept from Vancouver to Halifax."

Pleasant Condition of Amity.

Our Parliament has voted a war fund of $50,000,000. More money has been given for the aid of the wounded and the distressed. And I say to you as the Premier of Ontario that the limits of Canada in sending men and money to fight Germany will be measured only by her fullest ability.

"In such a day of strife it is a great thing to have an amity which has existed for this country for 100 years. For that period of time we have lived as friends without a gun or a foot along the 4,000 miles of border that divides us."

"For years this country drained the best blood of Canada, but I speak of it with pride when I say that the tide has now changed and that the Canadians, and Americans too, are returning. This interchange will help the feeling of friendship that has existed for so many years, and so I am glad that this evening I stand on United States soil with the flags of the United States and of Canada intertwined. May they both always stand for liberty, advancement and freedom."

WHO OWNS THIS $5,000,000 IN HUDSON TUBE STOCK?

Henry A. Murray, in Whose Name It Has Been Ten Years,
Doesn't Know, Nor Does President Oakman
—Minority Wants to Find Out.

The interesting point developed after the annual meeting yesterday of the preferred stockholders of the Hudson Tube Company, the creation and chief instrument of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo for the building of the Hudson tubes, that $5,000,000 of common stock in the name of a man who got it nominally ten years ago and doesn't know whether it is in his name or not is kicking around without any real ownership, so far as he and the president of the company say they know.

This $5,000,000 of common stock is one of the targets of the minority preferred stockholders committee who are fighting the present management for a thorough airing of a number of financial transactions, which they allege smack peculiarly of high finance. Charles W. Taintor of Boston, who is leading the minority fight, says that the bulk of the common stock that was issued "for property of no tangible value and with if there went besides $1,250,000 of the company's profit, probably as a sort of promoters' gift." He says he sees no reason why it should carry equal voting power with the preferred stock for which the holders paid hard cash, principally dollars, for the common stock issue, Mr. Taintor says yesterday that the case had been filed in the Supreme Court on January 6.

In Name of Henry A. Murray.

The stock is registered in the name of Henry A. Murray of 33 West Fifty-first street. Mr. Murray retired from a vice-presidency of the Guaranty Trust Company about ten years ago.

"I do not know whether the stock is in my name now or not," he said last night. "I don't know who owns it."

Mr. Murray said he believed he was once an officer of the Hudson Tube Company, but he thought he was never a director.
